New York Alarm PAC Needs You Now More than Ever

There is a new example at work in Albany, which makes New York Alarm PAC more important than ever. New restrictions on lobbying place greater emphasis on New York Alarm PAC to help us build relationships with members of the State Senate and Assembly—regardless of their party affiliation—and educate them about our issues.

Please recognize that your participation in New York Alarm PAC is completely voluntary, and you have the right to refuse without reprisal. Your decision will have consequences, however, because it will affect the security and fire alarm industry's ability to influence public policy and protect its future.

Participation at any and all levels is welcome.

Q) Why is New York Alarm PAC important?

A) In this age of "political campaigns through the media," the reputation of an organization is not enough to have real influence on legislative matters. New York Alarm PAC will strengthen our voice with the New York State legislature like never before, especially against immense challenges we can expect in the near future.

Q) How will the Committee spend the contributions?

A) First, we will support those candidates for office who are our profession's allies. And, New York Alarm PAC will be a powerful tool to mount strong lobbying efforts against bills that might chip away at our important public interest role as licensed individuals. Future challenges will require a greater effort.

Q) Will New York Alarm PAC alter the way legislators view our profession?

A) Until now, the Association was one of the few membership organizations in New York State that did not have a PAC. New York Alarm PAC will send a clear message to legislators that we have issues that are important to our profession and to the wider business community.
